

dict. ct - 189

EX-100-000000-000000-000000

~~SECRET~~

1. Phragmites australis (Cav.) Trin. ex Steud.

11B 28 2003

FEB 28 2003

Fraxinus, Quercus, Corylus, Liquidambar, and Fagus.

FEB 28 2001

No. of Copies rec'd
LH 4600E

ORIGINAL

EX PART

1/24/03

From: Missy McVittie
To: Mike Powell
Date: 1/24/03 5:57PM
Subject: Cellular Number Portability - YES!

C1-184

RECEIVED

FEB 28 2003

Federal Communications Commission
Office of the Secretary

Mr. Wheeler's comments - "Number portability is as unnecessary in the competitive wireless market as socks on a fish, but the FCC has made the situation even worse," president of the Cellular Telecommunications and Internet Association. are completely false.

Is Mr. Wheeler not considering all of the business owners that would like to change to a different carrier for economic reasons but don't simply because if they did they would run the risk of losing customers because they wouldn't have the new number? This doesn't include the cost that business owner would also incur to reprint all of their business cards/invoices/etc....

How about the people that were lucky enough to get a mobile number that matches the last four numbers of their land line -which they get to keep if they move? If they also want to switch, then they lose that 'connection'.

In this day and age where people are almost exclusively reached via their mobile phones, the number dialed to reach that person can become as "personal" as their choice in hair color and/or car.

To say that the general public's desire to maintain their 'own' number has less to do with socks for fish than telling the fish that before he can go swim in this cleaner and better pond he has to completely change his scales because corporate America says so.

Missy McVittie
Sacramento, CA

Stephanie Kost

ORIGINAL

01-184

From: John Mitchell
To: Mike Powell
Date: 1/24/03 6:44PM
Subject: Wireless number portability

Mr. Powell, I am resending you this email as it has been more than two months without a response from you.

Mr. Powell,

Please take note of my total disagreement with the FCC decision to extend the Wireless LNP deadline another year. This decision hurts consumers who have been waiting to leave their current provider who has given them years of poor network and customer service performance. The only reason I keep my current provider is for the phone number.

Please explain why this decision was made, and how it protects the consumer?

Regretfully

John Mitchell

CC: Kathleen Abernathy. Michael Copps. KM KJMWEB

RECEIVER

FEB 28 2003

Federal Communications Commission
Office of the Secretary

ORIGINAL

01-184

From: Gary Stradling
To: Mike Powell, Kathleen Abernathy, Michael Copps, KM KJMWEB, Commissioner Adelstein
Date: 1/26/03 9:23AM
Subject: Phone number portability

Commissioners-

As a consumer of telecommunication products, the question of number portability of cell-phone numbers and land-line numbers and interchangeability between the two is a no brainer. Portability and interchangeability is a must!

When my friends, family, and business associates change their numbers, it is a problem for everyone, with a lot of time wasted and frustration on the part of all. A customer can only make active contacts aware of a number change so we lose touch with those who are not immediate contacts.

The industry resistance to this is a transparent attempt to hold the consumer hostage to the hassle and unpleasant consequences of having to change the phone number when we make a change in service provider in a competitive market.

Portability and interchangeability will result in a more dynamic competitive telecommunications market and better service to the consumer. Please support those public requirements.

Gary Stradling
123 Canyon Vista
Los Alamos, NM 87544

(505)672-1669
stradlingg@compuserve.com

RECEIVED

FEB 28 2003

Federal Communications Commission
Office of the Secretary

ORIGINAL

01-184

From: Gary Stradling
To: Mike Powell, Kathleen Abernathy. Michael Copps. KM KJMWEB, Commissioner
Adelstein
Date: 1/26/03 9:24AM
Subject: Phone number portability

Commissioners-

As a consumer of telecommunication products, the question of number portability of cell-phone numbers and land-line numbers and interchangeability between the two is a no brainer. Portability and interchangeability is a must!

When my friends, family, and business associates change their numbers, it is a problem for everyone. with a lot of time wasted and frustration on the part of all. A customer can only make active contacts aware of a number change so we lose touch with those who are not immediate contacts.

The industry resistance to this is a transparent attempt to hold the consumer hostage to the hassle and unpleasant consequences of having to change the phone number when we make a change in service provider in a competitive market.

Portability and interchangeability will result in a more dynamic competitive telecommunications market and better service to the consumer. Please support those public requirements.

Gary Stradling
123 Canyon Vista
Los Alamos. NM 87544

(505)672-1669
stradlingg@compusefve.com

RECEIVED

FEB 2 8 2003

Federal Communications Commission
Office of the Secretary

From: Mohit Saigal
To: Mike Powell
Date: 1/27/03 12:28PM
Subject: Number portability

ORIGINAL

01-184

Hello,

I was wondering when is FCC going to allow consumers to carry their cell phone numbers to another carrier. As I have had my phone number for over 5 years. I hate my current carrier, due to poor service and product quality. And would like to take my number to another reliable carrier.

Thanks
Mohit Saigal

RECEIVED

FEB 28 2003

Federal Communications Commission
Office of the Secretary

The new MSN 8: smart spam protection and 2 months FREE!
<http://join.msn.com/?page=features/junkmail>

Q-184

Figure 1. The effect of the concentration of the Agaricus bisporus spores on the growth of Agaricus bisporus on the substrate.

RECEIVED

FEB 28 2003

Federal Communications Commission
Office of the Secretary

—

Steve Laifman

From: IGuadalupe@aol.com
To: Mike Powell
Date: 1/29/03 11:42AM
Subject: Cell Phone LNP

EX-107-0836-1000

ORIGINAL

07-184

Hello Mr. Powell

I am wondering when will we have local number portability for the average consumers cell phone. I understand this provision was to be completed 2 years ago and was extended to first quarter this year. Is this still on track?

Please respond thanks

Ismael Guadalupe II
214 522 0836

RECEIVED

FEB 28 2003

Federal Communications Commission
Office of the Secretary

01-184

From: F. Leanne Price
To: Mike Powell
Date: 1/28/03 2:47PM
Subject: cell phone numbers

ORIGINAL

Dear Mr. Powell,

I write to you today because I am a consumer and I wish to voice my opinion that I should be allowed to keep my cell phone number regardless of the carrier I use. The thought of having to change my cell phone number with each carrier I may choose keeps me from changing services because of the convenience/familiarity factor. In addition, it seem illogical to be assigned a new number in an otherwise over-crowded numbering system.

Thank you for your time and consideration in this matter

F. Leanne Price, Paralegal
Office Manager
William H. Dodson, II, LLC
6000 Lake Forrest Drive, Ste. 300
Atlanta, Georgia 30328
(404) 250-9800 - ofc
(404) 250-0535 - fax
leanne_price@dodson-galaw.com

RECEIVED

FEB 28 2003

Federal Communications Commission
Office of the Secretary

EX-107-117 124-29-20

From: carla griffis
To: Mike Powell
Date: 1/27/03 1:27AM
Subject: cell phones/area codes

ORIGINAL

I was just told about a problem that may be coming up and I wanted to voice our opinions about it. We heard that the phone companies wanted to give our cell phone numbers to "hard-line" phone users. I feel that if they are running out of phone numbers, they should create another area code. We cell phone users would have to notify all of our customers, friends and family of the new number if this happens. We have 3 cell phones in this household and they are used primarily for business. We are asking for your support for all cell phone users, to not let this happen.

Thank you,
Carla A. Griffis
Louis J. Griffis
Todd E. Kennedy

FEB 28 2003

FEB 28 2003

FEB 28 2003